Annual Liver Disease and Transplant Symposium

9/19/2025, 7:00 am – 5:30 pm - Live IPCE conference
The Inn at New York New Hyde Park 214 Jericho Tpke, New Hyde Park, NY 11040

Statement of Need: Chronic liver disease (CLD), including hepatitis C, liver cancer, and non-alcoholic fatty liver disease (NAFLD), poses a significant global health burden. Despite advancements in research and treatment, gaps in knowledge and practice hinder evidence-based care, emphasizing the need for targeted education to enhance healthcare professionals' skills in CLD management.

Program Objectives: All Northwell Health CME-CE activities are intended to improve patient care, safety and outcomes. At the conclusion of this conference, participants should be able to:

— ENHANCE the ability to diagnose and implement evidence-based treatment plans for chronic liver disease and related conditions, demonstrating measurable improvements in clinical practice and patient care.

— DEVELOP robust strategies for implementing multidisciplinary and patient-centered care frameworks in the management of chronic liver disease. This includes fostering cultural sensitivity and effectively addressing alcohol use disorder within hepatology clinics, with a focus on enhancing patient outcomes and care delivery through teamwork and holistic care strategies.

— DISCUSS the latest breakthroughs in diagnostic and therapeutic strategies for chronic liver diseases, including hepatitis C, liver cancer, and metabolic dysfunction-associated steatotic liver disease (MASLD). The objective aims to integrate cutting-edge treatment modalities, novel diagnostic technologies, and personalized management approaches into everyday clinical practice, adapting to the evolving needs of patient care.

Target Audience: This activity was planned by and for physicians, nurses and physician assistants and pharmacist. All other members of the health care team who are interested in liver disease and liver transplants are welcome to attend.
