OVERVIEW

Featuring physicians with University Hospitals Harrington Heart & Vascular Institute, this course covers topics in vascular medicine and surgery, and endovascular treatments, including diagnostic testing, clinical guidelines, and the latest research findings and discoveries. Our experts examine the potential benefits and risks of various therapies and discuss how they might impact patient care.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Identify clinical signs and symptoms of venous obstruction including the CEAP classification
- Discuss guideline-based recommendations for the treatment of carotid stenosis
- Describe the risks and benefits of endarterectomy
- Discuss the pathophysiology of limb ischemia
- Evaluate the indications for open surgery vs. endovascular therapy
- Utilize essential leadership skills to navigate changes in the practice environment
- Recognize evidence for thrombolysis for DVT/PE
- Conduct rapid evaluation/management of rAAA
- Describe medical and interventional treatments for claudication

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This conference is intended to update practicing internists, family medicine physicians, primary care physicians, cardiologists, hospitalists, emergency medicine physicians, vascular surgeons, physician assistants, nurse practitioners, nurses, residents and fellows on current topics in vascular disease.
