This full-day annual symposium will provide a comprehensive update of treatment approaches to the diagnosis and management of movement disorders. A broad spectrum of disorders including Parkinson’s disease, tremor, dystonia, and tics will be addressed. Experts will also share their strategies for avoiding the common pitfalls in diagnosing Parkinson’s disease, as well as discuss the role of the neuro-ophthalmologic examination in the diagnosis and management of movement disorders. Through video case presentations, didactic lectures, and interactive discussions with expert clinicians, this program will present leading-edge diagnostic and management strategies to better enable clinicians to care for movement disorder patients in 2016.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Recognize the clinical presentation (abnormal movements) that characterizes hyperkinetic movement disorders including dystonia, tremor, tics, myoclonus, and chorea.
- Design an individualized management plan for the patient with Parkinson’s disease.
- Describe an appropriate movement disorder candidate for DBS (deep brain stimulation).
- Define in general terms how local injections of botulinum toxin are utilized in the management of movement disorder symptoms, including the criteria for patient selection.
- Formulate a comprehensive assessment and treatment plan for the patient with tics or Tourette Syndrome.
- Generate a differential diagnosis of PD utilizing the Movement Disorder Society’s MDS Clinical Diagnostic Criteria for Parkinson’s Disease.
- Explain the value of the neuro-ophthalmologic exam in the diagnosis of a movement disorder patient.

Who Should Attend?

General neurologists, neurosurgeons, primary care physicians, psychiatrists, rehabilitation physicians, neurology nurses, physician assistants, movement disorder fellows, and neurology residents.
