Don't miss this opportunity to meet and share information with other vitreoretinal specialists in an open, intellectually demanding, collaborative environment. This year’s Emory Southeastern Vitreoretinal Seminar (SEVR) features case presentations and discussions led by Emory faculty along with audience participation. The program is geared toward community vitreoretinal surgeons, medical retina specialists, academic ophthalmologists, retina fellows, ophthalmology residents, and medical students. There will be vigorous give-and-take over controversial issues in a collegial environment. Specific content includes common and rare disorders of the retina and their treatment with medicine, surgery, or laser techniques. Lessons on the broad spectrum of human retinal disease, diagnosis, and treatment will be learned by attendees. In addition, three internationally known guest surgeons will lecture.

We are delighted to announce that Thomas Albini, MD, Professor, University of Miami, Bascom Palmer Eye Institute, will be our keynote speaker. This year's invited guest lecturers and program faculty include Amani Fawzi, MD, Professor of Ophthalmology, Northwestern Memorial Hospital, and Chris Bergstrom, MD, of Retina Consultants of Carolina.

Emory’s Retina and Uveitis faculty will present interesting cases, lead discussions on current controversies in retina care, and moderate the case discussions amongst the attendees. Ghazala O’Keefe, MD, and Steven Yeh, MD, are course co-directors and look forward to welcoming SEVR attendees and their guests.
